SKILLED BURGLARS AT WORK

Homes of Charles A. Rutherford and Amos Field Are Entered.

SKELETON KEYS MAKE ENTRANCE EASY

Houses Are Hansacked, but Cash is the Only Object of Search-Rutherford Home Seems to Be Marked.

For the fourth time in three years robbers entered the home of Charles A. Rutherford, 206 South Thirty-first avenue, Thursday night. A skeleton key afforded an entranes and the thieves landed $100 in easy money After leaving the Rutherford home the robbers paid a visit to the family of Amos Field, 216 South Thirty-first avenue, and added $35 to their earnings.

Mr. Rutherford did not retire until after midnight. Early in the evening a door leading into the cellar was discovered open, and the thieves may have been hidden in the cellar at that time. The supposition, however, is that the robbers used a skeleton

Pass to Silverware.

They confined their operations to the first floor and cellar of the Rutherford home, It is one continuous round of pleasure and and did not attempt to enter the sleeping rooms of the family. Silverware was not touched by the thieves, who seemed bent on securing money. Every possible hiding place for money was searched. Vases and bric-a-brac were inverted, and even the sugar bowl was emptied. Two purses containing about $100 rewarded the search. Mrs. Rutherford noticed that a light reflected from down stairs after she had retired. She heard no noise, supposed that some member of the family was stirring and

At the Field home the marauders made bold to enter the sleeping apartments. Mr. Field's trousers were carried into the kitchen and the contents of the pockets our ad. on page 7 and then come and see. were emptied on a table. A pocketbook Hayden Bros. containing $35 was emptied. Burnt sulphur matches, the old-fashioned sort which can be lighted without waking the entire neighborhood, were found in all parts of the house.

fell asleep without making any investiga-

Aside from the burnt matches and a badly disarranged house the robbers left no trace. The members of the Field family were not aroused and there is no evidence of how the burglars entered or left the house. This leads to the supposition that a skeleton key was again brought into play at this house

No article was taken in either house by which the thieves could be identified. Money, and money alone, held attraction for them. They paid no attention to silver trinkets and jewelry which might have given the officers some clus.

Announcements of the Theaters. The Orpheum is offering this week a bil that is highly satisfactory in every way. The Omaha Guards Gatling Gun section have an act that shows their wonderfully correct drilling and winding up with a vivid representation of a battle being Their act will stir the patriotism of even the most sluggish. Golden has an act that is replete with new tricks and appearances and disappearances and illusions that makes one rub their eyes to see it they really are awake or dreamed of the tricks. He makes one believe that he makes something out of nothing and nothing out of something. Francesca Redding and company have an act that fairly bristles with humor and never fails to keep the audiences in an uproar. The Damm brothers present an acrobatic act that is little short f being marvelous. The regular Saturday matinee will be given today. For the com ing week the Orpheum will offer its star attraction, Robert Hilliard, in that pathetic one-act drama, "The Littlest Girl," which has made such a big hit wherever it has
